Mourners brave heat, rain for brief glimpse

By Maria Elena and Jo Yap

IN SOBER DISMOUNT OF THE MARCHING SQUAD for his murdered husband, thousands of people yesterday came to greet for Cory Aquino. Some sat on the ground, others in the front row. Some were from the affluent class, but many were poor. Most quietly filed past the flag-draped coffin, others spoke words.

As they came for their 10-minute glimpse to see the coffin, many people wept. Some cried out in pain, others in joy. Many were from the poor.

One of the mourners, Mrs. Maria, 55, who described her husband as a good businessman, said she was from the poor.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, but by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. And the increase in obesity is not limited to the United States. In fact, the prevalence of obesity has increased in nearly every country in the world. In 1975, only 3 percent of the world's population was obese, but by 2000, that number had risen to 10 percent. The increase in obesity is a global phenomenon, and it is a cause for concern. Obesity is a leading cause of death and disability in the United States, and it is a leading cause of death and disability in many other countries as well. The increase in obesity is a public health crisis, and it is a crisis that we must address.

Automation deal broke law, says IT group

By Fernando S. Dela Cruz

MANILA, Jan. 11 (AP) — A group of computer scientists and engineers has filed a complaint with the Department of Justice, alleging that a deal between the government and a private company to automate the country's tax collection system violated the Anti-Trust Law.

The group, known as the Philippine Computer Society (PCS), filed the complaint with the Department of Justice on Jan. 10. The complaint alleges that the deal, which was signed in 1999, gave the private company, the Philippine Computer Society (PCS), a monopoly over the country's tax collection system.

The PCS is a private company that was formed by a group of computer scientists and engineers. It has been working on a project to automate the country's tax collection system since 1999. The project was funded by the government, and the PCS was given a monopoly over the project.

The PCS has been working on the project for several years, and it has made significant progress. It has developed a system that can collect taxes automatically, and it has been testing the system in several cities. The PCS has also been working on a system that can collect taxes from businesses, and it has been testing this system as well.

The PCS has been successful in its efforts, and it has been able to collect taxes more efficiently than the government has been able to do in the past. However, the PCS has also been accused of using its monopoly to engage in anti-competitive practices, such as charging high prices for its services and refusing to compete for business.

The Department of Justice is now investigating the complaint, and it is expected to make a decision on whether to file charges against the PCS. If charges are filed, the PCS could face fines and other penalties under the Anti-Trust Law.

What we lost

I AM CONVINCED that the Philippines has lost a great deal of its national identity and its sense of direction. The country has been reduced to a mere collection of islands and a mass of people who are lost in a sea of confusion and uncertainty.

EDITORIAL

The Philippines is a country that has been blessed with a rich and diverse culture. It is a country that has been blessed with a long and proud history. It is a country that has been blessed with a people who are brave and resilient. It is a country that has been blessed with a future that is bright and full of promise.

But what have we lost? We have lost our sense of direction. We have lost our sense of purpose. We have lost our sense of identity. We have lost our sense of pride. We have lost our sense of hope.

Citizen Cory Aquino crosses over into history

MANILA, Philippines (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo on Monday paid tribute to the late President Corason Aquino, who died on Sunday, for his role in restoring democracy to the Philippines.

Arroyo, in a speech at the Malacañan Palace, said that Aquino's death was a great loss to the nation and to the world. She praised his leadership and his commitment to the principles of democracy and human rights.

Aquino, who served as the 11th President of the Philippines from 1986 to 1992, was a key figure in the People Power Revolution that ousted Ferdinand Marcos in 1986. He was known for his peaceful approach to politics and his dedication to the welfare of his people.

His death, at the age of 83, was the result of a long battle with cancer. He was survived by his wife, Corason, and their children.

Arroyo's speech was a poignant reminder of the challenges and triumphs of the Philippine journey towards democracy. It also served as a call to action for the current generation to continue the work of their predecessors and to strive for a more just and equitable society.

UK solons: Afghan mission failed to reach goals

AFGHANISTAN (UPI) — British Prime Minister Tony Blair's government has admitted that its mission in Afghanistan has failed to reach its goals, a move that could lead to a new election.

Blair's government has been in power since 1997, and has led the country through a period of economic growth and social reform. However, the government has been criticized for its handling of the Afghanistan mission, which has been described as a failure.

The government has now announced that it will be stepping back from its mission in Afghanistan, and will be focusing on other areas of the country. This move has been seen as a sign of weakness, and has led to speculation that Blair's government will be replaced by a new one.

Figure 1 displays 16 small plots arranged in a 4x4 grid, showing the spatial distribution of 16 species of the genus Euphorbia. Each plot is labeled with a species name and a number (1-16). The plots show the distribution of the species across a grid of 16 cells, with some cells containing a small black square indicating the presence of the species. The species names are: 1. Euphorbia corollata, 2. Euphorbia corollata, 3. Euphorbia corollata, 4. Euphorbia corollata, 5. Euphorbia corollata, 6. Euphorbia corollata, 7. Euphorbia corollata, 8. Euphorbia corollata, 9. Euphorbia corollata, 10. Euphorbia corollata, 11. Euphorbia corollata, 12. Euphorbia corollata, 13. Euphorbia corollata, 14. Euphorbia corollata, 15. Euphorbia corollata, 16. Euphorbia corollata.

Figure 1. A schematic diagram of the experimental design. The subjects were divided into two groups: the control group and the experimental group. The control group received a standard 12-week training program, while the experimental group received a modified 12-week training program. The modified program included a 4-week pre-training period followed by an 8-week training period. The subjects were then divided into two subgroups: the control subgroup and the experimental subgroup. The control subgroup received a standard 12-week training program, while the experimental subgroup received a modified 12-week training program. The subjects were then divided into two subgroups: the control subgroup and the experimental subgroup. The control subgroup received a standard 12-week training program, while the experimental subgroup received a modified 12-week training program.

Teens get crisis survival lessons

By [illegible] and [illegible]

MANILA — A group of teenagers from a public high school in Manila recently received a crash course in crisis survival lessons. The students, who were part of a special program, were trained on how to handle various emergency situations, including fire, earthquakes, and other natural disasters. The program was designed to equip them with the necessary skills and knowledge to stay safe in the event of a crisis. The students were also taught the importance of staying calm and following instructions during emergencies. The program was a success, and the students were able to demonstrate their newfound skills and knowledge.
